

THE EVENING STAR.
WASHINGTON.
TUESDAY, July 8, 1890.
THOMAS S. NOYEN, Editor.
THE EVENING STAR has the largest Local Circulation of any Newspaper in the World, and as an Advertising Medium is worth more than all the other papers published in Washington.

The Star has been unceasing in its efforts to extend and improve Washington's system of parks for the benefit of public health, comfort and rational pleasure. In some other cities a similar desire has been displayed by the press. The Paterson (N. J.) Press, having the development of the infant parks of that city in view, has sent inquiries upon various points connected with park management to the city authorities and newspapers of the largest 100 American cities and has received answers from 84. Fourteen cities, including Newark, Jersey City, Scranton and Norfolk, have no public parks. Most of the questions related to Sunday recreation in the parks. Washington is recorded in the negative on all these questions. There are no boats, steam launches, carousels, swings, ball playing, concerts, refreshments allowed in the public parks on Sundays or on holidays on week days. It is curious to note that New York has no steam launch privilege in public parks on any day and no ball playing on Sunday, while also "yes" on all the other objects of inquiry. New Orleans makes no distinction between Sunday and any other day in the matter of recreation. Cincinnati has Sunday boats and refreshments, no ball playing; she proposes to have Sunday concerts soon. Richmond runs a negative list on Sunday amusements all through. Philadelphia allows ball playing and refreshments on week days. Baltimore allows boats and refreshments only. Twenty-five cities permit boats to be used in the parks on Sunday; 17 do not. In 14 steam launches are permitted on Sunday; in 20 not. In 9 carousels; in 37 not. In 22 swings; in 33 not. In 8 ball playing; in 59 not. In 20 concerts; in 47 not. In 30 refreshments; in 37 not. In 11 refreshments on week days; in 66 not. On Sunday amusements the negative prevails except in respect to the use of boats.

China intimates that if Chinese may not be permitted to come to America will not be permitted to come to China. The suggestion is logical. There are advantages and disadvantages in Chinese immigration. The republic has weighed the opposing considerations, and has decided that North America shall not be the home of the millions which overcrowded Asia forces to her borders. If China by a similar process of reasoning reaches the conclusion that the coming of Americans into her territory is, on the whole, undesirable, or if recognizing a great gain from this immigration, she is nevertheless willing to sacrifice the advantage in order to gratify the pride of retaliation, then she will exclude Americans, and the republic cannot complain. To shut out the Chinese will thus involve certain material losses to the United States. But on the other hand one very important source of national blood poisoning will be closed. The republic in pursuance of its original role as the haven of refuge for the oppressed of all nations has long been swallowing much more alien material than it could thoroughly assimilate. In the opinion of very many the time has come in the nation's development when restrictions should be placed upon the general invitation to all the world, which the vast and sparsely settled republic extended. And especially is it considered wise to divert to other shores the overflow of half-civilized Asia, whose people furnish the most unbecoming material out of which to develop loyal and valuable American citizens, and who, as sojourners, by reason of a hereditary aptitude to live on next to nothing under the American workman, and threaten to degrade labor by rendering impossible the gratification of our workman's loftier (and more expensive) aspirations.

If Congress would relieve Washington from paying for a worthless tunnel, which it did not order, for work which it did not request to be done at its expense and from which it derives no benefit, for water which it does not get, and would also relieve the city from sharing the expense of living specimens in the zoological department of the National Museum, the District would have abundant means to meet its expenses. If Uncle Sam would shoulder the responsibility of his own blunders, committed through his direct agents, and would also pay for national matters exclusively from the national purse, there would be no talk of a District deficit. There does not seem to be any good reason why the debt for the new water main should not be paid in annual installments, just as it is provided that the tunnel tribute shall be extended. Succeeding taxpayers will profit by the extension of the water-works system and they should have the privilege of contributing to pay the cost of the improvement. This alternative is much preferable to a cutting down of the necessary expenditures to meet current needs of the city. The payment of the tunnel debt ought to be postponed until some use is derived from the tunnel by the water-takers. Under the circumstances of the case the only equitable ground upon which this levy on the water-takers can be based is the implied agreement to pay for something had and enjoyed. Those who get water through this tunnel, if any ever do, ought to pay for it.

The grade-crossing accident boys up as usual. In Philadelphia yesterday two ladies on a passing street car were severely injured by a leading locomotive. The lives of eight passengers, the conductor and the driver on the car were in imminent danger. The Philadelphia car was not killed or seriously wounded. The grade crossing is a relic of barbarism and is, besides, the symbol of the autocratic corporation control under which the country seems to be rapidly passing.

The wind came out of the cloud by night and spread terror and destruction through Fargo, the leading city of North Dakota. These cyclones in the northwest grow more and more destructive as western settlement peoples their pathway. The force and fury of the hurled life and property, and the whole world hears of such calamities within a few hours.

The Washington Star and not the New York nameless should be credited by our morning contemporary with the story about the Maclester search light and country lovers, which it reprints this morning. It was one of the local good things enjoyed by the readers of THE STAR on the 19th of June.

The nude statue of Detroit is to be clothed. In the worst of the hot wave, too. The Apollon and Venuses protest.

As a compliment to Chicago the Atlanta people who have collected the money to buy an elephant for their park should name it Worlds-fair.

The English government has concluded not to control the telephone companies but will license companies to handle the business.

The weather is altogether too warm for Sir Julian Paulestone and Secretary Blaine to get into a fight over the seal fisheries or anything else.

Governor Nichols has vetoed the lottery bill, but the lottery people will drop the Nichols in the slot and get a charter just the same.

The silver compromise has been perfected, and the silver men have been skipped just this side of free coinage.

To a distant observer it would seem to be the dictate of wisdom for Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, to abdicate his throne. There is very little else for him to abdicate.

If it were a question simply of specific gravity the Stone would of course be greater than the Reed.

Even Speaker Reed can't count a quorum in the House these hot afternoons.
